To bring the South Beach experience to the Dolphins football Games, Miami Marketing Group (MMG), operators of LIV nightclub at Fontainebleau Miami Beach hotel, collaborated with the owners of Sun Life Stadium in creating the ultimate fan party experience. Designed by Seed Design Inc., who is recognized as one of the premier nightlife venue designers in the world, the trendy LIV Sun Life Stadium opened its doors for the Dolphins home game against the NY Jets. Hollywood Woodwork was very excited to be part of this high profile project and to partner with RCC & Associates, General Contractor and the owners of the stadium. Bill Knight, Project CEO at Hollywood Woodwork said, "This was a unique project with lots of metal substructure which we designed; not your typical scope for millwork. We worked closely with stone and metal contractors and managed all the installations; everyone had to be perfectly in sync. We had three weeks, start to finish, for shop drawings, fabrication and installation. Installers worked double shifts and around the clock to meet the deadline, but I was very confident in our team's commitment and professionalism to deliver this quality project," said Bill.

Located on the West End Zone on the 200 and 300 level, the new 10,000 square foot lounge contains private cabanas and tables, two bars, dance floor and DJ booths. Dolphins CEO Mike Dee believes that this new fan experience at Sun Life Stadium will become the place to be and be seen. "This is going to be the best party within South Florida's biggest party," said Dee. And on its opening night, that is exactly what LIV Sun Life Stadium delivered; glamour and celebrities such as Marc Anthony with wife Jennifer Lopez, Fergie, Enrique Iglesias, Tara Reid, Miami Heat stars LeBron James, Chris Bosh, Dwyane Wade and Kim Kardashian who were mingling among fans watching the game at LIV lounge.
